Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

It is surprising to find that there once could have been a huge river running through the deserts of the Arabian Peninsula.

The discovery was made by a scientist named Farouk El-Baz. While studying a satellite photograph of the Arabian Peninsula, he noticed that there was a mysterious line on the photograph, running from the Hijaz mountains to the Nafud desert. He also saw a second line running towards the sea at Kuwait. He studied them and noticed that the sand dunes on each side were very different in shape and size.

Mr. El-Baz believes that the differences can be explained by a massive river which would cause both the line and the dunes. In his theory he suggests that the river ran through the desert between 6.000 and 11.000 years ago. He calls it the Kuwait River.

Mr. El-Baz is hoping that there is still a river running below the Nafud Desert. He is continuing to study satellite photographs and hope that one day, large amounts of water will be found beneath the desert, helping the people in this very dry region.

A. Choose the most suitable answer and write a, b or c in the blank space:

1. The best title for the passage is _____.
 - a. The desert river
 - b. Farouk El-Baz and his satellite photograph
 - c. The desert of Arabia
 - d. Growing trees in the desert
2. Mr. El-Baz noticed _____ on the satellite photograph.
 - a. lines
 - b. a massive river
 - c. an underground river
 - d. mountains
3. The sand dunes were _____.
 - a. very high
 - b. different in shape and size
 - c. in the river
 - d. near the sea

4. Mr. El-Baz _____.
a. is still studying the photographs
b. has finished his work on the desert river
c. doesn't think there is water beneath the desert
d. likes to go running in the desert
5. "he" in line 4 refers to _____.
a. the discovery
b. Dr. Farouk El-Baz
c. people of the desert
d. a satellite photograph 6. "them" in line 6 refers to _____.
a. the mysterious lines on the photograph
b. the photographs
c. the Hijaz mountains
d. the Hijaz mountains and the Nafud Desert
7. "noticed" in line 4 means _____.

Read the following passage and choose the right answer from a, b, c or d:

The land, the sun and the sea are the foundations of life. Water, trees and plants are essential to life on Earth. People and animals breathe in oxygen and breathe out carbon dioxide. Trees do exactly the opposite, so there is a perfect balance between animal and plant life. Plants are our greatest source of food. They provide the world with most of its food requirements. (A) Plants also provide cures for many of our illnesses. Most medicinal plants are found in the great tropical rainforests which help control the world's weather and provide a home for thousands of species of animals and insects.

(B) The sea has a great effect on our weather. The heating and cooling of the sea help decide the pattern of our winds. The sea is also the main source of our rainfall. The heat of the sun evaporates the surface water of the sea, turning it into water vapor. The water vapor rises into the air and forms clouds. The clouds are then driven upwards by air-currents or by winds from mountains. As they rise, they become cooler and the water vapor condenses and falls as rain.

(C) Two layers of gas in the earth's atmosphere make sure that we get this energy in safe quantities. The ultraviolet rays from the sun's light can cause skin-cancer and blindness and can even kill. The layer of the ozone gas stops most of the ultra-violet rays racing the earth's surface and so protects life. Below this ozone layer there is another layer of gases, mostly (CO₂). The heat from the sun goes through this layer and reaches the earth. Heat rays bounce back off the surface. Some go back through the layer of CO₂ layer into space.

(D) However, some are trapped by the CO₂ and keep the earth warm, maintaining the conditions necessary for life.

Questions:

1. Trees breathe in _____
 - a. oxygen
 - b. carbon dioxide
 - c. ozone
 - d. other gases
2. "They" (line 4 paragraph 1) refers to _____
 - a. animals
 - b. animals and plant life
 - c. plants
 - d. food requirements

3. Medicinal plants are found in the _____
a. rainforests
b. clouds and mountains
c. layers of gases
d. illnesses
4. Plants are necessary for life as _____ a. they are great sources of food
b. they control world's weather
c. they provide a home for many people
d. Both 'a' and 'b'
5. The word "species" in paragraph one is closest in meaning to _____
a. kinds
b. amounts
c. animals
d. layers
6. The heating and cooling of the sea help decide _____
a. the source of our rainfall
b. the pattern of our winds
c. the pattern of air currents
d. the winds from mountains
7. The sea water is changed into vapor by the _____
a. winds
b. sun's heat
c. clouds
d. rainfall
8. The word "condenses" in paragraph 2 is closet in meaning to _____
a. changes into vapor
b. changes into liquid
c. changes into gas
d. changes into clouds
9. When water vapor rises, it becomes _____
a. warmer
b. hotter
c. higher\cooler
10. The harmful rays of sun's light may cause _____
a. death
b. skin cancer
c. blindness
d. all the choices

11. The earth's atmosphere consists of _____
- a. ultraviolet rays
 - b. a mixture of gases
 - c. carbon dioxide
 - d. the ozone gas
12. "Some" (line 18 paragraph 3) refers to _____
- a. gases
 - b. layers
 - c. rays
 - d. quantities

Read the following passage then answer the questions below:

At an early stage of human civilization science was not developed in random way. But today with the development of technology, science becomes more useful and cultural aspect for mankind. At every stage of life we use many scientific instruments. Again science helps to provide entertainment for human beings. Nowadays science is progressed in more advanced way. By using technology, men are able to invent many new things. Mathematics is an important subject among other science subjects. At every moment, people are able to calculate any problem by applying mathematics.

To study other science subjects like physics, statistics, chemistry, etc., the knowledge of mathematics is very essential as it is very useful to solve any problem related to above subjects. With development of science we are able to use internet system. By using this system we can be able to collect any information about any topic. Or in other words human beings are completely related and depended on science.

To study art and literature is very useful for human beings. People can know about many past events by reading different history books. They can easily be familiar with different cultures by reading many literatures. By studying geography, we can know about nature and environment. We can know about life style of many different cultural people by reading art and literature.

From the above discussions, it is clear that to study science is more important than to study art and literature. To study science helps us to live in more advanced way. Science stream is too vast and is developed in more advanced way that students in science stream have more facility to work in that field compared to art students.

Questions:

A Choose the most suitable answer and write a ,b ,c or d:

 - a. mathematics has developed
 - b. many new things can be invested
 - c. entertainment is available
 - d. science doesn't progress
3. Mathematics is very important to _____
 - a. use the internet system
 - b. collect information
 - c. study other science subjects
 - d. calculate Math problems only 4. The word "it" in paragraph 2 refers to _____
 - a. other science subjects
 - b. knowledge of mathematics
 - c. problem
 - d. chemistry
5. By reading art and literature _____
 - a. we can know about past events
 - b. we are familiar with nature and environment
 - c. we are aware of different cultures
 - d. we can deal with scientific instruments
6. The word "that" in paragraph 4 refers to _____
 - a. art stream
 - b. literature
 - c. students
 - d. science stream
7. Students can get more work opportunities when _____
 - a. They join science stream
 - b. They join art stream
 - c. They study geography
 - d. They specialize in Mathematics

Read the following passage then answer the questions below:

What is the largest desert in the world? The Sahara Desert? The Arabian Desert? The answer will probably surprise you. The continent of Antarctica is the Earth's biggest desert. It gets very little snow, and the South Pole, in the middle of the continent, receives none.

It is, in fact, usually too cold in Antarctica for snowfalls. Antarctica, on average, is the coldest place on Earth. During the winter the temperature can drop to -90 degrees Celsius. Despite the cold temperatures, people who go to Antarctica have to wear sun block, since the ice reflects most of the sunlight up onto your face.

Antarctica has 4 active volcanoes and some high mountains. Nevertheless, about 98% of Antarctica is covered by the world's thickest ice sheet, at 2.5 kilometers. All that ice means that Antarctica contains 90% of the world's freshwater. Some scientists are afraid that if global warming continues, some of the Antarctic ice will melt. Then ocean levels will rise, and many coastal cities around the world will be flooded.

Winter time in Antarctica is truly dismal. The lowest temperatures on Earth have been recorded there. In addition, the strongest winds blow across the continent. They reach speeds of between 40 to 80 km/hr, which is faster than a car driving in a city. Winter in Antarctica lasts more than half the year, and during this time there is very little daylight. In fact, in the middle of winter, the sun doesn't rise at all.

During the summer months, human activity increases, since the weather is not as bad as in the winter. About 4000 researchers from 12 different countries conduct experiments at Antarctica stations. This makes Antarctica one of the most studied places on the planet. They study the wildlife, rocks, the weather, the ocean and the atmosphere. In addition the scientists, tourists also come to Antarctica in December and January (the Antarctica summer). In 2002, almost 14,000 tourists spent about US$ 10.000 each to take a two-week boat cruise to Antarctica. If you want to experience sub-zero temperatures, see lots of ice, and spend time with penguins, you should plan your next vacation for Antarctica. Be careful about going there during Ramadan, though-during the summer, the sun doesn't set!

Choose the most suitable answer and write a, b, or c in the blank space:

1. A good title for the text might be _____
 - a. Human activities in Antarctica
 - b. The coldest place in the world
 - c. The common features of deserts

- a. change into ice
 - b. change into water
 - c. change into vapor
 - d. change into heat
8. The word "conduct" in paragraph 5 means _____
- a. carry out
 - b. last
 - c. spend
 - d. hire

9. Only _____ of freshwater is found in the whole world excluding Antarctica.
- a. 90%
 - b. 10%
 - c. 98%
 - d. 2%
10. Fasting in summer is difficult on Antarctica due to _____
- a. the lack of water and food
 - b. being the coldest place on earth
 - c. being the furthest place on earth
 - d. the endless daylight

Read the text and then answer the questions below:

Almost a thousand years ago at a time when Spain was part of the Islamic empire, there lived near the capital city of Cordoba one of the great, but now largely, forgotten pioneers of surgery. He was known as El Zahrawi, El Zahrawi was born in the city of El-Zahra, six miles northwest of Cordoba, sometime between 936 and 940. It was here that he lived, studied, taught and practiced medicine and surgery until shortly before his death in about 1013, two years after the sacking of El-Zahra.

Because El-Zahra was destroyed, little is known about its illustrious son El Zahrawi. He was first mentioned by the Andalusian scholar Abu Muhammad bin Hazm, who listed him among the great physician-surgeons of Moorish Spain. It is clear from El Zahrawi's life history and from his writings that he devoted his entire life and genius to the advancement of medicine as a whole and surgery in particular. El Zahrawi wrote a medical encyclopedia spanning 30 volumes, which included sections on surgery, medicine, orthopedics, ophthalmology, pharmacology, nutrition etc.

This book was known as At-Tasrif and contained data that El Zahrawi had collected during a career that spanned almost 50 years of training, teaching and practice. In At-Tasrif, El Zahrawi expressed his concern about the welfare of his students whom he called "my children". He emphasized the importance of a good doctor patient relationship and took great care to ensure the safety of his patients and win their trust irrespective of their social status. Once Ar-Tasrif was translated into Latin in the 12th century, El Zahrawi had a great influence on surgery in the West. Perhaps the most important treatise was the one on surgery. This monumental work was the first in Arabic to treat surgery independently and in detail. It included many pictures of surgical instruments, most invented by El Zahrawi himself and explanations of their use.

1. El Zahrawi was not largely known because _____
 - a. he was mentioned by Ibn Hazm
 - b. he was Anadalusian
 - c. hi city was destroyed
 - d. he lived a thousand years ago
2. This text is mainly about El Zahrawi's _____
 - a. life
 - b. life and achievements.
 - c. children
 - d. patients

3. El Zahrawi was mainly a _____
- a. surgeon
 - b. pharmacist
 - c. dentist
 - d. orthopedic
4. In his book At_Tasrif, El Zahrawi was concerned about _____
- a. 50 years of training
 - b. medical encyclopedia
 - c. the social status of his patients
 - d. the welfare of his students
5. El Zahrawi lived for about _____
- a. 73 years
 - b. 60 years
 - c. 50 years
 - d. 30 years
6. Where did El Zahrawi have great influence on surgery?
- a. in Europe
 - b. in the east
 - c. in Cordoba
 - d. in China

Read the text and then answer the questions below:

Most people expect the laws of nature to be obeyed. That is, they expect a compass to point to the north and water to flow down a hill. But these natural laws that we take for granted do not hold in some places on the planet. In places such as Croy Brae, Scotland, and sardine of Creek, Orgeon, USA, the laws of nature that we normally experience are not in effect.

When tourists driving their cars in Scotland come to the hill called Croy Brae, they think they are dreaming. The road appears to go downward, and yet, when drivers slow their cars to go down the hill, their cars stop. The road that looks as if it is going down really goes up! People experience the same sensation on the other side of the hill, too. When drivers accelerate their cars in an attempt to go up the hill, and they go down! If a car is left on the hill without its brakes on, it will move up the hill rather than down as well.

People also feel confused in a place called Oregon Vortex in the United States. In a circular spot 165 feet (49.5 meters), the laws of nature change. In the Vortex, balls roll uphill and smoke makes spirals. A heavy iron ball suspended from the ceiling hangs at an angle. Compasses don't work in the circle, but people standing in it automatically lean toward magnetic north! A person moving away from another seems to get taller instead of shorter and a person coming toward an observer seems to get shorter.

No one has yet been able to explain why the normal laws of nature don't hold in these places around the world. Some scientists feel that the effects are really optical illusions. Others think that there must be local variation in the earth's magnetic fields that cause changes in the normal behavior. Still others believe that these places somehow affect our sense of balance. But whatever the theories, the facts show that natural laws are different for some places on earth.

1. This passage is mainly about unexpected _____
 - a. compasses
 - b. natural laws
 - c. dreams and reality
 - d. tourism

2. In Scotland the road that looks as if it is going down really _____
 - a. turns to the right
 - b. turns to the left
 - c. goes down
 - d. goes up

3. The topic in paragraph 2 is _____
- a. natural laws
 - b. Scotland's strange nature
 - c. dreaming and human brain
 - d. magnetic fields
4. In Oregon USA compasses don't work in a circular spot which is _____
- a. 165 feet
 - b. 216 feet
 - c. 165 meters
 - d. 156 feet
5. The word "circular" in paragraph 3 means _____
- a. in form of a triangle
 - b. in form of a circle
 - c. starting point
 - d. all the above
6. The word "affect" in paragraph 4 means _____
- a. influence
 - b. intend
 - c. inhale
 - d. infect
7. We can understand from paragraph 4 that natural laws _____
- a. are the same everywhere
 - b. are all normal
 - c. differ in some places
 - d. don't affect normal behavior

1. Polo is an usual sport. It uses a ball and a mallet, which is used to hit the ball. It also requires helmets to protect the players' heads, gloves for their hands and boots to guard their legs. The players hit the ball into a goal to score. Nothing special, right? The game of polo suddenly becomes very exciting when you discover the final piece of "equipment" the players need: a horse. That's right; it is played entirely on horseback. How did this unique sport that combines the talents of humans with animals become popular?
2. The game of polo was developed in Persia around 2,000 years ago, but the British made modern polo worlds-famous. A mere 150 years ago, the British came in contact with the sport, in the Indian city of Silchar. There, the oldest existing polo club, the Calcutta Club, was founded by the British in 1862. A polo club opened in England just ten years later, and British soon began to travel and show others this great 'new' sport. Polo quickly grew world wide. Twenty years later, clubs as far away as Argentina and Australia were founded.
3. Today, 77 countries around the world have polo teams, including the UAE. Dubai, Abu Dhabi and Sharjah all have their own polo teams, made up of foreign and Emirati players. Matches are played all year round and include players at every level. So, if you enjoy playing sports and are a good horse rider, why not consider joining the polo team?

1. What is the topic of paragraph 1?
 - a. The popularity of polo
 - b. What players need for polo
 - c. Horses and the polo match
 - d. Strange and exciting sports
2. In paragraph 1, helmets are something for the _____
 - a. hand
 - b. leg
 - c. boot
 - d. head
3. When was the first polo club founded in England?
 - a. 2,000 years ago
 - b. in 1872
 - c. in 1862
 - d. 150 years ago

4. In paragraph 2, There refers to _____
- a. Persia
 - b. Britain
 - c. Silchar
 - d. Calcutta

Persians, on the other hand, used henna dyes to stain their hair and faces to make themselves beautiful.
3. Later, in the European Middle ages, both men and women made their faces white. Rich men wanted people to know that they did not have to work outdoors in the sun. They wanted to show off their wealth by having a pale or white face. Royal 13th-Century Italian women wore pink lipstick to show they could afford makeup. During the Italian Renaissance, women wore lead paint on their faces, which caused hundreds of deaths because lead is poisonous.
4. In England at the time of Queen Elizabeth I, cosmetics were seen as a health threat because many thought makeup would stop blood and energy from circulating through the body properly. At this time, men's makeup wasn't as obvious as women's (women wore egg whites over their faces to create a glazed look).
5. By the time Charles II of England took over, Europe was still recovering from the plague when thousands of men, women and children died. Because of this, many people were afraid to go outdoors, so heavy makeup supplied the color that sun-fearing people couldn't get elsewhere. Later, during the French Revolution in the 18th Century, red rouge and lipstick were popular and implied a healthy, fun-loving spirit. But other people didn't like all this makeup. They thought the French had something to hide!
6. When makeup regained acceptance in the late 19th century, it was with natural tones so that the healthy, pink-cheeked look could be achieved without using all the dark colors the French had used.
7. Yet, throughout history, makeup hasn't only been used for beautification; people have tried to use makeup to cover mild to severe imperfections and discoloration of the skin caused by birth, fire or accidents.
8. Today's makeup is much more developed than in the past-both in cultural trends and styled. Makeup today seems to be a mix of past styles with a new emphasis on the natural look. A natural look that took centuries of painting faces to achieve.

Text8:

Read the text and then answer the questions below:

1. Over the years, as we have watched technology evolve, classrooms have also experienced a change. What once used to be the common instructional tool, the chalkboard, is no longer existed. Instead, keyboards and digital displays are being used. They are now as popular as the chalkboard was 50 years ago. The modern-day classroom looks like a computer lab with students using laptops and wireless access to the Internet rather than teachers standing in front of the classroom telling the students what to do; students have become the teachers themselves and teach each other.
2. Schools have had to keep up with the times and are incorporating technology throughout the United States. Computer networks connect each class, and laptops are readily available for classes to share in addition to their sharing regular computer labs. Students have access to the Internet and are introduced to hard ware such as wireless technology in addition to software applications: for example, Microsoft programs and various types of web site software. Advanced equipment is also provided including digital cameras, scanners, digital video cameras, video editing machines, CD burners and projectors. But does this enhance education?
3. A recent study in the United States shows that students are using computers more at school than at home and the number of computers available per student is on the rise. In 1994, the ratio of students per computers was 21.1 to 1. This decreased to 5.4 to 1 in the year 2000. In addition, 21% of the students in the USA used the Internet at home for homework; and 51% were using the Internet access that had been provided for students after school hours, for the same purpose: homework. Loaning students laptops for study purposes also increased the students' Internet access. In 2001, 10% of public school loaned laptops to students for periods ranging from one week to one school year which further increased student access to the Internet.
4. Technology has also made other changes in schools. It is now possible for students to explore new learning opportunities and to take on more responsibilities. Students in science classes have communicated with experts from NASA through the Internet to help complete projects that had been introduced by their teachers. Students have also become the technical support for their schools by setting up technology in the classrooms, troubleshooting technical problems, and even installing new software. Other tasks for students have included creating and upgrading school web sites, typing essays, creating teachers' material using MS Publisher, MS Word, and MS PowerPoint, and becoming tutors for other students.
5. In additional to the technical skills used within the schools, students are taking these skills and applying them to the real world. Tupelo Middle School, in particular, volunteered their technical services to a local senior citizens nursing home. The residents of the nursing home were provided laptops and the students taught them how to set up e-mail accounts and how to use the Internet so that they could communicate with people outside the home. Later that year, the students were given part-time summer jobs to give the residents extra technical coaching. Opportunities like this better prepare students for the workforce.
